Rarely does an editor have the privilege of reading a work of such beauty and passion. Laala captures the human heart and experience in every word of her astonishingly moving collection. - Karen S Davis, editor of 'Behind the Mask: A Folded Heart'. --Karen S Davis, editor of 'Behind the Mask: A Folded Heart'.

Review

There is a definite candor in Laala's poetry, but a wonderful gift as well for her readers. Her words are full of insight, compassion, and beauty. A beautiful collection. - Lisa Zaran, author of 'The Blondes Lay Content'. --Lisa Zaran, author of 'The Blondes Lay Content'.

Laala has the ability to take common emotions and shape them in a way that is both honest and original. Her works are incredibly passionate and very real and altogether unparalleled. - Kyle Lanter. --Kyle Lanter.

Product Description

'Behind the Mask: A Folded Heart' is a poetry and prose collection consisting of 68 pieces divided into six sections based on their subjects. She begins her collection with "Ink Bleeds: matters of the heart" and goes on to explore the human heart in that section and then the mind, life, the world, art and ends with "Stained Paper: forever etched". The collection is highly acclaimed and eagerly awaited.

About the Author

Laala Kashef Alghata is a sixteen-year-old poet and novelist, currently the former. 'Behind the Mask: A Folded Heart' is her second book. Her first, a children's novel called 'Friendship in Knots', was written when she was ten and eleven and published two years later. She has been said to "[have] an inherent sense of beauty and timing coupled with wisdom beyond her years that serves not only to mold incredible word sculptures but also the very thoughts of her readers." (L. Stephen Meck)
